RECIPE HEALTH BENEFITS

- Avocados are high in healthy fats as well as antioxidants such as vitamin E, which is great for skin health. They contain a good amount of dietary fibre which supports the digestive system.
- Cacao powder contains powerful antioxidants and are rich in nutrients such as iron, magnesium, calcium, and zinc. Note that Cacao powder is similar in appearance to Cocoa powder, however pure raw Cacao is less processed and does not contain any added ingredients.
- Cinnamon in this recipe is a terrific addition as it helps regulate blood sugar levels.
- Oranges are an excellent source of vitamin C which supports the immune system. It is also a source of fibre.

TIPS

- Be sure to wash the oranges well under cold water and try to use organic options as this recipe calls for zest. Non- organic, waxed oranges contain a coating to protect them and used to give them a longer shelf life.
- Picking your avocados:
Ripe avocados are best consumed within a couple of days. Always look for the deep green colour which indicates they are ripe and ready to eat. Check the firmness and make sure they are not too soft and equally not too hard. If the skin of the avocado is cracked or contains dark soft patches, this is an indication that it is overripe.
- If you prefer a smoother, lighter texture to this chocolate dessert, add another tablespoon of water to the mixture.
- For a more bitter chocolatey taste, either remove the maple syrup from the recipe or add more cacao powder.
- Want to add a little bit more protein and nutrients to this recipe? Add a scoop of nut butter, hemp, or pumpkin seeds to the mix. * Careful, these contain allergens.
